BOX III. OBSERVATIONS WHERE UNITY OF INVENTION IS LACKING

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In order for more than one species to be examined, the appropriate additional examination fees must be paid. The species are as follows:

Species I: beverage container having cavity, cooling element coupled to vessel, stem and tray.

Species II: beverage container having vessel, cooling element within a cavity and stem.

Species III: beverage container having vessel, hemispherical cavity, hemispherical cooling element and base connector.

Species IV: beverage container having vessel, cavity, cooling element and tray.

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Species I: claims 1-19

Species II: claims 20-24

Species III: claims 25-27

Species IV: claims 28-32

The following claim(s) are generic: no claims are considered generic.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: cooling element has different coupling feature, vessel has different characteristics and container includes different limitations.
